PRICE ONE CENT.

6 O'CLOCK
EXTRA.

HARRY BENNETT
AT LIBERTY.

"The Evening World" Set the Tardy Wheels of Justice in Motion.

HE WAS 86 DAYS IN A CELL.

Charged With a Crime of Which He Was Entirely Innocent.

CORONER TOOK NO ACTION.

The Lad Sheds Tears of Joy as He Steps Out into the Sunlight.

Harry Bennett, the innocent boy, who has spent eighty-six days in Essex Market and the Tombs prisons, accused of a terrible crime, was found guiltless of the offense charged, by the Grand Jury.

Harry Bennett in His Cell.

It was almost the last official act of the Grand Jurors of the October term, and they recommended that the lad be released from custody.

Judge Cowing received the recommendation in Part 1 of the Court of General Sessions at 2 o'clock, and half an hour later the boy was taken from his cell by Officer Brown and formally given his liberty.

Harry Bennett then walked out into the "bright, happy, and cried for very joy."

"Oh, I'm so happy, and I owe so much to 'The Evening World' for what it has done for me!" he exclaimed, as he grasped the reporter's hands.

"This is the first time in three months that I have been able to see the sun and breathe the fresh air."

"Oh, won't my father be glad," the little fellow cried, gleefully.

"We will never be able to repay 'The Evening World' for the happiness of this moment, to know that I am an innocent boy and am free again!"

Policeman McGuire, of the Delancey street station, was the only witness besides the Grand Jury, and upon his evidence and the testimony adduced in Corner Schultz's court yesterday, the Grand Jurors once again that a grave injustice, through official neglect, had been done.

The case of Julius Hirschberg was not considered by the Grand Jury. Assistant District-Attorney Battle stated this afternoon. He will be investigated by the November Grand Jury, probably next week.

It was only yesterday that "The Evening World" called the attention of the Coroner's office to the outrageous treatment of the innocent boy, incarcerated as he has been for eighty-six miserable days in the Tombs among criminals subjecting him to beatings and hot water, seeming only a trifling matter to the officials, but when the public is notified of the outrage how quickly tardy justice is meted out.

moment he saw what had taken place he handed the lines to me and, jumping from the wagon, ran away.

AFTER HIS RELEASE HARRY THANKS "THE EVENING WORLD" REPORTER.

"I laid in Essex Market prison for twenty-three days, when I was sent here."

"I sent word to my employer, stating the circumstances and asking him to furnish bail, but he sent word: 'I can't get nothing more to do with you, you!'"

"Then I wrote to Col. Welles, but I never received an answer."

Harry had tears in his eyes while he told the reporter that he had never been arrested, and dwelt upon the shame of it.

Harry has only been in this country two and a half years, but speaks the English language well, though he has never attended school here.

GREEN GOODS TO SELL.

Clever Capture Made in the North River Hotel.

Sullivan's Supposed Victim Proved to Be a Detective.

He Is Handcuffed and Held in $2,500 Bail.

Michael Sullivan, a green-goods worker, twenty-four years old, of 48 Hamilton street, was arrested in the Essex Market Police Court today and committed in default of $2,500 bail for examination next Wednesday.

About two weeks ago Moses Hor-splan, of Worcester, Mass., received a number of letters relating to the purchase of green goods from James Carlow, of 27 West street, this city. Hor-splan notified Inspector McLaughlin of the correspondence and was instructed to continue it, and to let him know when the arrangements were made for a meeting in this city.

Inspector McLaughlin received a telegram last Wednesday notifying him that Horplan was expected to arrive here at 8 o'clock Thursday morning, and go to the North River Hotel. The Inspector instructed Detective Robinson to implicate Horplan and go to the hotel at the appointed time.

Detective Robinson accordingly registered at the hotel as "Moses Horplan, Worcester, Mass." He was reading a newspaper when a tall young man entered, about three-quarters of an hour later, and in a friendly way grasped his hand.

"What is your name?" he asked the detective, and on receiving it at once produced two telegrams to show that he was all right.

Robinson said that he was perfectly satisfied that he had met the right party, and was ready for business.

"I've got orders from the 'old man' to sign the green goods, and I'm not going to Bound Brook, N. J."

"Well, I can't help it," said Sullivan.
"I've only got to obey my instructions.
If you want any green goods, you've got to come with me to Bound Brook, as we don't do business in the city."

"Well, my friend," said Detective Robinson, as he seized Sullivan by the throat, "you won't go to Bound Brook.
You are under arrest."

"Hully gee!" gasped Sullivan. "What punched you, greenie, drop your fooling. I'm not going to Bound Brook."

Detective Robinson showed Sullivan a loaded revolver was found in Sullivan's pocket.

It will be remembered that only a short time ago George Appo, the Chinese Lexow witness, was found in front of the North River Hotel of a sore throat.

Appo claimed that he was murderously assaulted by green-goods men highly intoxicated, and that he was loaded revolver was found in Sullivan's pocket.

The proprietor of the hotel threatened to sue the newspapers who persisted in calling his place a resort for green-goods men.

News at Last of the Long-Missing Ship Ivanhoe.

(By Associated Press.)

PORTLAND, Ore., Nov. 2.—The ship Fannie Duford has arrived at Port Blakely, bringing news that the Ivanhoe, which has been overdue for over a month, sunk with all on board Sept. 28.

The Ivanhoe was the ship on which ex-United States Minister to Bolivia Grant was a passenger.

The ship Ivanhoe, Capt. Griffin, sailed from Seattle Sept. 26, for San Francisco.
She passed Tatoosh two days later, since which date nothing has been seen of her.

Washington, Small-Pox.
(By Associated Press.)

WASHINGTON, Nov. 2.—Precautions are still being taken at the Interior Department for the prevention of small-pox. The Department will be closed tomorrow at noon for another thorough fumigation. Another new case was reported by the health authorities. A colored man in the employ of Ex-Governor Goheen, Moore, of the army, at 303

FOUR CENTS A LOAF.

Price of Bread to Be Reduced Within a Few Days.

One Big Firm Agrees to the Rate and Others Will Follow.

A Fair Margin of Profit Will Remain Through Cheaper Flour.

"The Evening World's" fight for a reduction in the price of bread is now practically won, and success is within a few days the public will be able to purchase a loaf of bread for which it is at present paying five cents, at the rate of four cents a loaf. At least, this fact was promised this morning to an "Evening World" reporter by one of the best known, and largest wholesale bakers in the city.

Hugo Fredericks, manager of Rock-well's Baking Company, to-day promised to aid "The Evening World" in securing the reduction, and intimated strongly that within the next few days his firm at least would make a reduction in the price of the staff of life.

Mr. Fredericks is the first wholesale baker to accede to the demands of the public. It has been the wholesale dealers who have been responsible for the fact that, despite the great reduction in the cost of flour, the public has been forced to pay the same price for bread as when flour was 50 per cent. higher.

The justice of the demand that the price be reduced from five to four cents a loaf has been so forcible that Mr. Fredericks has determined to accede, despite any protestations from his brother bakers.

With such a prominent firm as Rock-well's to break the existing combine, it is well to believe that other firms can keep from falling into line, and within a few days the public may expect to see the reduction general all over the city, thanks to "The Evening World."

A fair margin of profit will remain, as the position Rockwell's Bakery holds in the bread market. It is one of the largest bakers in the city, having been in existence for over a quarter of a century.

Many of the poor people on the streets have reason to know, and, instead of being angry, as they were when they learned that Rockwell's was the first to break the bread monopoly.

Mr. Fredericks was found at his office this morning and said: "I am aware that something may be expected of me right here. I am an entertaining proposition made by 'The Evening World,' and will do all in my power to aid it."

"I cannot assure you that there will be a reduction immediately, but within a few days I am sure that such will be the case. You see that at present the price of the wholesale bakers is using flour that they purchased under contract when that staple was much higher than it is now, consequently a reduction immediately would entail an enormous loss to them."

"As far as my own firm is concerned, I can see that they always have been, and always shall be, open to any just reduction of the public, and we can see our way clear to make the cut, if that will be done. I can promise you that within a short time the price of bread will be seen at that price proposed by "The Evening World," and the figure as long as wheat market enables us to buy flour at that price."

"The 'Evening World's' demand is a just one in many ways. The only error I can see is that bakers—that is, the greater majority of wholesale bakers—have not yet reaped any actual benefit from the great reduction in the price of flour. It has been the only place to give the bakers any chance to explain their position and to be treated fairly, and I think that other wholesalers as well as ourselves will fall in line for a reduction."

"Just how soon the reduction will be general I cannot say, but it will be soon. I can say that we are conferring about the matter, and as soon as plans are perfected we will put them into action."

Of the other firms who will most probably follow the example set by Rockwell's is the Droste Baking Company, whose establishment is on East Seventy-fifth street, near Rockwell's.

Manager Goodwin said this morning that he was unable to say at present just what his firm would do. He intimated, however, that Mr. Droste was not willing to reduce the price of bread, and that he, too, would fall in line.

Among the smaller bakers, the public demand is being regarded, and many of the bakers are making the required reduction in the price of bread.

In many of the show windows on the east and west sides, loaves that were originally marked 5 cents are now marked 4 cents.

Battles Are Expected at Kinchow and at Fung-Whang.

(By Associated Press.)

YOKOHAMA, Nov. 2.—It is announced that the investment of Port Arthur by land and by sea, and that the forward movement of both the Japanese armies in the direction of Moukden is being rapidly pushed.

It is added that a portion of Field Marshal Count Oyama's force will attack Kinchow, on the Gulf of Liatung, near which place the Second Japanese Army has landed and which is occupied by the Chinese troops. In the meanwhile, Gen. Nodzu's advance column is approaching Fung-Whang, a fortified position on the main road between Wiju and Moukden, to which place all the Chinese troops retreated after leaving their positions north of the Yalu River.

The Japanese expect to defeat the Chinese at both places and then unite their columns before the walls of Moukden.

NOV. 15 THE LAST DAY.

Narragansett Racing Meeting Will Close on that Date.

(Special to The Evening World.)

RACE TRACK, NARRAGANSETT PARK, Nov. 2.—When this meeting opened it was announced as a forty-five day meet, and many people supposed that this meant a racing season days. President Crosby said to-day that this meeting would terminate on Thursday, Nov. 15, the last day for legal racing in the State.

This was the twenty-seventh day of the meeting, and a big crowd was present. The card was a large one. There were but few scratches and the sport was good. The track was in fair condition and the weather fine.

HAUGHEY, RYAN
AND BROGAN.

Mrs. Matilda Hermann Drags New Police Captains Into the Lexow Net.

ACCUSES JUSTICE HOGAN.
Declares He Tried to Shield Capt.
Haughey in One Notable Instance.

SHE WON'T GIVE AWAY COONEY.
And Also Positively Refuses to Testify Against a Captain Who "Treated Her Well."

The Under-Coachman's Drive.

With Mrs. Matilda Hermann, the former proprietor of one of the most notorious houses of ill-fame in the city, as the star witness, to-day's session of the Lexow Committee gave promise of some of the most startling disclosures of police blackmailing that have yet been brought out by the Senate investigation.

Every one is familiar with the story of her escape from the city last September, when the subpoena-serve of Capt. Goff was looking for her, and how she was traced, first to New Jersey, and then to Canada, and finally to Chicago, where she was found living with a colony of New York disorderly house keepers, who had been induced, probably by the police, to leave the city summarily by the police, to leave the city, and were awaiting the final ad-judgment of the Lexow Committee to return here and resume their business.

Closely Guarded All Night.
Then, when she was finally induced to come back to New York and give her testimony she was waylaid at the Pen-sylvania depot in Jersey City, the officers of the Senate Committee were arrested on a trumped-up charge of kidnaping and every device of the law was employed to prevent Mrs. Hermann from coming to this city.

It is said that last week she was a prisoner there until yesterday afternoon, when she was discharged from custody and appeared voluntarily before the Committee, ready to tell her story.

But it was too late in the day to hear her story. The committee was in session until 10 o'clock, and the Lexow Committee was adjourned for the day.
She passed last night at the Hotel Jefferson, on the other side of the river, the protection of the sergeant-at-arms of the Committee, and guarded by five officers of the State Police.

Chairman Lexow's warning that any attempt to approach her or discuss her case would result in her prosecution for felony was not disregarded.

It is said that Mrs. Hermann had documentary proof of her dealings with the police, and that she had a list of books were all in the trunk which she brought with her from Chicago, but which she had not taken with her when she arrived in Jersey City.

Senator William R. Dwyer, of New Jersey, who has been in the city since he learned of Mrs. Hermann's escape from his clutches, and in his rage he has threatened to bring a bill before the Legislature to punish any person who attempts to approach her or discuss her case.

The Charge Against Andrews.
The sensation of yesterday's session came just at the time when the Lexow Committee was about to adjourn. The charge against Commissioner Andrews, ex-Chief Inspector of the Police, and his wife testified that the Commissioner had been in the city since he learned of Mrs. Hermann's escape from his clutches, and that he had been in the city since he learned of Mrs. Hermann's escape from his clutches, and that he had been in the city since he learned of Mrs. Hermann's escape from his clutches.

FEIGENBAUM CALLED.
Carl Feigenbaum, who has been on trial all this week for murder in the first degree before Recorder Smith, in the Court of General Sessions, on the night of Sept. 1 at 54 East Sixth street, was put upon the witness stand in his own defense this afternoon.

He gave his testimony in German. He said that at about 11:30 o'clock on the night of the murder he was awakened by the striking of pebbles against the window pane. He arose and went down stairs, and found there a man named Jacob Weigal, a gardener, whom he had known for many years. Weigal asked Fei-genbaum to take him in and let him share his bed.

Feigenbaum did, and shortly after he was awakened by cries of "Murder." He got up and rushed out of doors to find Weigal. Then he was arrested.

This story is entirely different in its details from the one Feigenbaum told on the morning after his arrest. He said that at that time that the alleged murderer had been in the city since he learned of Mrs. Hermann's escape from his clutches, and that he had been in the
escape from his clutches.

Lawyer Pentecost Says He Has New Evidence for McCall.

Lawyer Hugh O. Pentecost, in the Court of General Sessions to-day, moved that sentence be suspended in the case of Henry McCall, the ex-inspector of Public Works, convicted of assault in the second degree upon Mrs. Lucy McCall, Mrs. Pentecost said that he had secured new evidence showing that Mrs. McCall and Mrs. Stewart, a witness, had committed perjury. Judge Martine said that he would question Mrs. McCall later in the day.

Forgot to Pay Cabbie.
Robert Costello, thirty-one years of age, of 154 East Twenty-sixth street, was arrested in the Yorkville Police Court this morning on charge of John Dempsey, a cabbie, who charges him with refusing to pay cab fare. Costello claims to be a Republican worker. Dempsey drove him from place to place yesterday for eight hours.
